This week in English, we have written our newspaper reports about Boudicca's rebellion and have been exploring complex sentences further to enhance our writing. Next week we will be learning about the features of different types of leaflet and beginning to write our own linked to our Roman projects.

In Maths we have been assessing our fractions, decimals and percentage knowledge and have begun to learn how to calculate area and perimeter of composite rectangles. We will continue this learning next week, also applying it to our Roman projects.

Next week is Science Week. We will be learning about Earth and Space: finding out about all the planets and carrying out investigations to prove that the Earth spins on its axis.
