

Dear All,

When asked in surveys how we well deal with bullying in school, families often say they don't know. Now there is a positive in this because it could be that you haven't experienced bullying and so don't know how well we would deal with it. However, we have decided that we perhaps we need to tell you a little bit more about what we do.

Each year we have a focus on antibullying when we join in with the national anti-bullying week. These always have a different focus and this year it is around individuality and uniqueness. We will start the week with a while school assembly then each class is going to take part in a whole school art project based around a book called 'Only One You'. We are all going to design rocks, then improve our designs using peer critique and finally paint rocks. These will form an art installation to make our journey into school more welcoming.

In preparation for this we need each child to bring in a smooth rock ready for painting by Friday. I will post pictures of our progress on our website along with more information about how we support anti-bullying in school.

Regards,

Sally Windmill

PHSE Leader