Our learning this week...

Maths

This week we have been learning about negative numbers and calculating across the zero.

English

We have started writing our own sequels to our class book. The children have been sharing their first part with a friend offering peer critique.

History

We have launched the next mini-outcome in our project. This part looks at the invasions of the British Isles and focuses particularly the Vikings. We started by looking at photographs of artefacts found that tell us about the past.
