

Amethyst Class Newsletter

Is Life One Big Adventure?

The children have finished making notes and have started writing up their findings. Some have chosen to make small booklets, others posters and some wanted to write non-chronological reports.

Maths

We have been busy revising topics the children identified as their weaker areas (ratio, measure conversion, BIDMAS and geometry).

English

The children have written newspaper style reports about Beowulf's defeat over the monster Grendel. They are now planning their own Viking Mythical narrative.

Class Social Media

At the Morfa Bay Meeting, several parents asked if I could share photos of the children during the week to keep families updated with what we are up to. I thought this was a good idea and decided the easiest way is for me to Tweet photos daily and parents can follow the class Twitter account and see updates. A parent has offered to share the Twitter photos on the class Facebook page so they will also be able to be seen on there too.

Below is the name of the class Twitter account if you want to follow it ready for Morfa (you should then get alerts as I post pictures!).

@AmethystClass

10th May 2019