10th January 2020

Happy New Year to all you wonderful people. I hope you all had an amazing holiday with the children and you are rested, ready to tackle all that 2020 has to offer.

This week:

It was so lovely to see the children come bursting back with enthusiasm and excitement for our new project. Over the next two terms, we will be learning questioning 'Where does it all begin?' This project will be heavily focused on History – particularly from the Stone Age to the Iron Age. Throughout each project, the class will aim to create something which will go on display for our final outcome (we are aiming to create a museum).

During our Wow Day, the children had the opportunity to become archaeologists and go on their very own archaeological dig! There was plenty of excitement but it was really wonderful to see how seriously they took it.
