Missing Dragon

This week has been very eventful and you may have heard about the disappearance of Indigo our pet dragon. Children discovered that she had gone missing on Monday and have been busy trying to locate her whereabouts since. They have written missing dragon posters, notes and reflections as if they were Indigo and also a newspaper article. We were all relieved when we received a letter from Indigo mid-week, which reassured us that she was safe and was in fact on an adventure exploring around Wickwar. I thought you would like to see where she has been. We are hopeful that she will return before school is closed for half term.

In maths, we have been finding fractions of numbers using the bar model and will be moving onto decimals after half term. I have set some pre learning on Mathsletics and your children will need help with this homework.

Have a lovely half term.
