In English we have been looking at the language and organisational features of instructions, reminding ourselves about imperative verbs and time conjunctions. We have begun to plan our own Stone Age instructions to write next week.

In Maths we have begun our learning about time. We have been learning to read an analogue clock to the nearest minute, in both numbers and Roman numerals. Reading minutes to times have been quite tricky, please keep on top of Mathematics and any opportunity to practice reading an analogue clock at home to support your child.

In Art last week we had our first lesson on sewing, using a running stitch. I was amazed by the children's skills, it seems lots of us have talented relatives that have passed these skills on! For those of us new to sewing there was brilliant concentration and resilience. We will be continuing our sewing this week.

Have a lovely weekend, Mrs Grainger.
