

Jet Class Newsletter

25.10.18

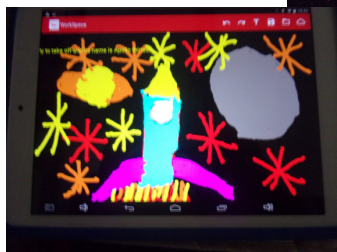

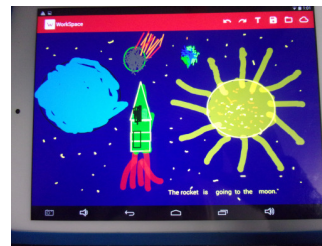

What have we been learning?

Another busy week in Jet Class!

In English the children have been writing invitations inviting you all to a coffee morning to share their learning about our space theme. They have tried really hard to include conjunctions to extend their sentences. We will be sending the invitations home just after half term.

In maths we have developed our greater than/less than skills solving problems and challenges.

In ICT we have finished our space pictures using the learn pads and 'workspace' programme. We peer critiqued each others pictures then improved them using our friends suggestions.

Next Week

Happy Half Term.

Research homework will be coming home with the children in their ink home learning books. Please support your child to research Tim Peake and record their findings.

Homework due in Monday 5th November 2018.

Important information

Please can we ask all parents to check that you have the correct jumpers/cardigans at home as a few named items have gone missing?

Monday 26th November 2018 @ 10am - Jet Class learning share and coffee morning to raise money for 'Children in need'.

As part of our learning based on our class text 'Toys in space' we wanted to link our learning to donating toys to local Charities. We would like each child to bring in one toy they would be happy to donate to a charity.

Jet Class Newsletter

25.10.18

	During the coffee morning there will be the opportunity for your child to share their space learning with you and their journal. If you are happy to donate cakes or biscuits for the coffee morning we would really appreciate your support.
--	-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------