

Jet Class Newsletter

17.11.2017

What have we been learning?

This week has been Anti Bullying Week, we started off the week with an assembly with Mrs Windmill where we listened to the story 'Only one you' which taught us all about being unique. We then designed our own art pebbles to represent what makes us unique using colours and symbols. Jet class and Emerald class got together to peer critique each others art pebble designs using warm and cool feedback and then we used this feedback to improve our designs. Finally we painted our designs on our pebbles using the painting skills we were taught last term. We are so pleased with them as they look fab!

Next Week

In maths we are developing our addition and subtraction skills, learning a variety of written methods and applying them to solve mastery challenges.

We will be continuing to practice our Bollywood dance ready to perform to the other classes.

In English we will be writing Diary entries from Lily describing her journey through her garden. We will look at features of diary writing, applying conjunctions to extend sentences and noun phrases to describe what she sees.

Reminders

Please remember to write in your child's orange home-school book when your child has read at home. This can be a bug club book, school book, book from home, library book or a book you have shared together. We will check books on a Friday and move your child up the reading tree if they have read 5 times.

Now that the weather is getting colder and darker, please ensure your child comes to school with a warm coat.
