Learning

This week we have carried on applying our counting in different ways so keep singing those songs at home to embed that counting to build fluency in any spare moments!

We discussed our first outcome for this project which will be a sea-themed party to celebrate the Royal wedding. This will happen on 17.5.2018. The children decided they would like to wear sea-themed costumes like they did in 'The Lighthouse Keeper's Breakfast' story. They also thought we should have food so we have been learning about recipes in preparation for our cooking session. We have used the mud kitchen to make up recipes, then write them down. We have even included photos of our concoctions.

At home

Share a recipe with your child. We have talked about the title, the list that tells you how much and what you need to put in, and the instructions with numbers. Photos of this can be uploaded to 2Build, emailed, or stuck into the red book to add to our journals.

All of the children are now on the lighthouse so thank you for your support with the reading challenge. Let's keep that going!

End of the day

It can be quite hard to spot people through the crowds at the end of the day. To make it easier for your child to spot you, please come further across the playground in line with the door that we come out of.

Have a wonderful bank holiday weekend!
