Welcome back! We have kicked off our new topic of Space this week. Our roleplay area is a rocket and all children need to do their astronaut training before they can have a go! We have been learning the parts of a rocket and will be setting some home learning soon involving some making! We have begun to learn about the 8 planets in our solar system. We are also planning to invite children back to school one evening to do some star gazing; we will let you know when we have decided on a date. In art, we have been looking at Van Gogh's Starry Night painting and making our own artwork inspired by this using wax resist.
